COLLEGE FRATERNITIES.

CHICAGO, Mar. 7.—The gravest indictment which has yet been drawn against the secret societies in the Chicago High Schools in the hands of President Snyder, president of the Board of Education.

It is contained in a report of an investigation made, at President Snyder's request, by the detectives of the city police department.

In substance report charges that gross immorality is practised at several of the fraternity houses. Six specific instances are cited in which women (not connect in any way with the schools) have been found, harbored in the houses, the boys in each case being members of the fraternity which maintains the building.

President Snyder has had the report for several days but has declined to make it public.

At its meeting yesterday the school management committee to which the "anti-frat" resolution had been returned by the board at its last meeting passed the measure again by vote of 4 to 2 thus making it extremely possible that it will be passed finally by the board at its meeting Wednesday night.

MYSTERY OF THE CASTLE ROCK

Schooner Matthew Turner in From Bay City—Senator Departs South—Rose City and Roanoke Due Tomorrow—Other Interesting News.

The handsome cutter Hugh McCulloch went to sea at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon on her way to Neah Bay, where she will await the return of the Thetis from the north, after which she is supposed to return to this port for station duty.

The S. F. & P. steamship Senator was an early get-away for the Golden Gate City yesterday morning long before daybreak.

The fine steamer T. J. Potter will be at the O. R. & N. pier this morning in the place of the Hassalo, which will go on the ways for the next few weeks for repairs to her shattered machinery, wrought by the blowing out of her port cylinder-head on Thursday last.

The French barks Bayard and Bougainville are in this harbor loaded for Europe and are scheduled for despatch today.

The British ships Nereus and Verbenia left up for Portland on the tow lines of the steamer Oklahoma yesterday morning.

The steamship Rose City is due at the O. R. & N. pier tomorrow morning about 11 o'clock from the Bay City.

The steamship Roanoke is billed to berth at the Callender dock tomorrow afternoon, from Port Los Angeles, San Francisco and Eureka.

The four-masted schooner Matthew Turner crossed in yesterday morning from San Francisco, and will load lumber for the return voyage, at the Tongue Point mill docks.

The British bark Castle Rock now out 167 days from Sydney, Australia, with coal for Girvin & Eyre, at Portland, and upon the fate of which there is much speculation, has been given up as lost by the best informed men hereabout. The voyage, even at its longest, rarely exceeds 60 days and the extraordinary lapse of 107 days is unaccountable upon any plausible pretext. She might do the remarkable stunt performed by the British ship Allahabad over 20 years ago, when she rode into this port just 180 days from Hong Kong. Everybody had given her up for lost and some had almost forgotten her in the rush of other and nearer interests, when, as from out the very core of space, she was seen threading the city channel on the hawser of one of the Flavel tugs, as bright and chipper as a new yacht, her sails brailed up in snowy bunts, her brass-work gleaming, her decks glistening, her running-gear all coiled down, and everything in admirable ship-shape from stem to stern. For exactly one-half of that unconscionable time, she had been bucking a nor'east monsoon in the China Sea, and at its close her master found his vessel a few miles to the southward of the port of departure, with all his voyage ahead of him, and that was impeded with long-drawn storms and deadly calms. This may be the story of the Castle Rock, but it will be a revelation, when it comes, of absorbing interest. Captain M. T. Jones is listed as the master of the missing ship.

FALLING FROM HEIGHTS.

A German scientist Prof. Albert Heim, who fell over a precipice in the Alps, but lived to tell the tale, makes that story a very encouraging account to those with an inclination to high jumps and the like.

His fall was only seventy feet, yet that would be more than enough to satisfy a temperate person. He has narrated his sensations in minute detail.

At first, says the Gateway, he seemed to himself to be flying through the air. His fall really could have occupied only a few seconds, but his train of thought was long and full of interesting detail.

"I clearly saw," he says, "the possibility of my fate. I said to myself: 'The rocky wall from which I am now being hurled prevents my seeing what is at its base. The snow may be melted there, or there may be none; if there is any, my life may be saved. Otherwise death is inevitable.

"If I am conscious on reaching the earth I have by me a bottle of aromatics and my alpenstock. I will still grasp it, for it may serve me in good stead.' I thought, too, of removing my eyeglasses lest their splintering might cause injury.

"Other and gentler thoughts for those I was to leave behind came upon me. For myself I felt indifferent, caring really little whether I should be much injured or not; but from motives of consideration for others I felt impelled, as it were, to make light of the matter. I seemed to call aloud, 'I am not much hurt.'

"I recollected that in five days more I was to have delivered an inaugural discourse, and thought of the grief my death would cause to those near and dear to me. Anon, lying as it were, on the limit of a far distant horizon, appeared distinct and divers images and episodes in my past life. The whole mental picture stood out clear-cut and illumined by divine and mysterious light.

"All things seemed lovely and of good report. There were no misgivings, no anxieties, no sorrow, pain or terror."

"There were no sensations of contest or strife. All was merged in feelings of genial good will and kindly feeling. Such feelings predominated over all and formed what was truly a unique and lovely picture.

"Gradually a heaven of glorious blue, flecked with crimson clouds of gossamer lightness, surrounded me. In them I was wafted, to and fro, borne up from below, but painlessly and pleasantly, while a vast and moving snowfield seemed to accompany me. Anon, the perception of objects, subjective thoughts, a medley of various feelings, seemed to circle in concentric maze around as a common center.

"Then came a dull thud, which I heard very distinctly, but did not feel—and my fall was ended. At that instant a dark veil passed before me.

"I called aloud three or four times, 'I am not much hurt,' grasped my glasses, which lay near me, and touched my limbs to make sure they were not broken.

"Then I saw my companions slowly approaching. They told me a good half-hour had elapsed after my fall before I spoke.

"I had lost consciousness, and that explains that dark veil. Later the power of thinking returned. I was conscious only so long as I was falling of the perception of beautiful images. At that moment of contact with earth they disappeared."

On another occasion Dr. Heim was injured in a carriage accident. He said that he distinctly heard and counted the bones fractures—seven in all—which he received. He quotes the evidence of an Italian who had a similar experience.

The ever-increasing popularity of the Palace Restaurant is evidence of the good management, and the service, at this popular dining room. For a long time the reputation of the house has been of the best and it does not wane as time progresses. A common saying nowadays is "Get the Palace habit."

The Commercial.

One of the coziest and most popular resorts in the city is the Commercial. A new billiard room, a pleasant sitting room and handsome fixtures all go to make an agreeable meeting place for gentlemen, there to discuss the topics of the day, play a game of billiards and enjoy the fine refreshments served there. The best of goods are only handled, and this fact being so well known, a large business is done at the Commercial, on Commercial street, near Eleventh.

Many a man who strongly objects to pumping water for a half-dozen cows, thinks nothing of sitting around for half a day pumping his neighbors.
